

Offers to provide you with a U.S. visa which do not involve appearing at a U.S. Consular Section for a visa interview are always scams. Any unsolicited offer to provide you with a U.S. visa is usually a scam, whether online or in person.

If you are the target of a scam, please report it to your local law enforcement authorities immediately, as the U.S. government cannot generally take any legal action against the offenders. However, informing the Embassy by email that you have been a victim may enable us to better assist with any later inquiries received from Indian authorities. Copies of any documents received in the scam may also facilitate such assistance.
